Aims and activities of the organisation	OCRE, is a non-profit entity focused on developing and promoting cultural and artistic projects in rural areas, particularly in regions of low population density within Aragón, Spain. Their primary aim is to enhance access to culture as a fundamental right in these peripheral areas. They achieve this by offering a diverse range of cultural activities, including music, film, and dance festivals and events, as well as research and development activities that promote local heritage. Ocre works towards transforming the local economy, fostering growth, and promoting social and territorial cohesion. Their multidisciplinary team of cultural professionals is dedicated to creating sustainable, innovative, and egalitarian cultural spaces that respect and preserve the rural identity of each community. The object of activity for repertory performance: Ocre's activities in repertory performance are part of their broader mission to dynamize rural economies and improve conditions in rural areas. They focus on showcasing traditional crafts, local artisanal practices, and cultural heritage, while also promoting the unique gastronomic and natural offerings of the region. Through these activities, Ocre not only seeks to preserve and transmit cultural values and local identity but also aims to create new cultural industries capable of sustaining economic growth over time. Their repertory performances are designed to reinforce the region's image, enhance its cultural visibility, and contribute to the sustainable development of the local tourism industry.
